When Diop finally returned to Africa, he served as director of zoological technical services in Ivory Coast and Upper Volta after 1946, but his literary debut came in 1947 with Les Contes d'Amadou Koumba, a collection of short stories based on Senegalese folk tales. Diop claimed that Amadou Koumba was a griot, or traditional West African storyteller, that Diop had met on his travels, but he later said that Koumba was a composite of many such griots he had come to know.
